

WOULD CLOSE UP JOHNSON'S CAFE

CHICAGO CITY COUNCIL CON-
DEMNIS BOASTS MADE BY CHAMPION PUGILIST.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The city council, aroused by the reports of his "depraved, degraded and immoral" conduct and of the slurs which he has cast on Chicago womanhood, unanimously adopted a resolution recommending that Mayor Carter Harrison revoke the saloon license of Johnson's $80,000 "Cafe De Champion," 41 West 31st-st. The resolution, drawn by Alderman Ellis Geiger, pointed out that Johnson's boasts of his ability to "get" any woman he wanted, was an insult to the womanhood and a challenge to the manhood of Chicago and recommended that not only his license be revoked but that the city council see that he was prosecuted on the white slave and all other charges pending against him. The resolution was passed by a viva voce vote while the crowded galleries cheered. The resolution, in part, follows:

Condemns Pugilist's Boasts.
"Whereas, it has been reported in the press of this city during the past fortnight and heralded throughout the nation, that one John Arthur Johnson, commonly known to the public as 'Jack' Johnson, a colored person and champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, has been maintaining improper, illegal, licentious relations with a young white woman; and
"Whereas, the said Jack Johnson is reported to have said that he would spend his last dollar before he would give up the aforesaid young white woman and is reported to have boldly and shamelessly boasted to her mother that he could get her or any other white woman in Chicago that he wanted; and
"Whereas, the said Jack Johnson is engaged in the business of conducting a saloon and restaurant at 41 West 31st-st. Chicago; and
"Whereas, it is further reported by the press of this city that one official of the police department has declared that he knew of nineteen violations of the law by the said 'Jack' Johnson in the conduct of his saloon; and
"Whereas, it is further reported by the said press that Jack Johnson stands charged with a serious and revolting crime or crimes in violation of the laws of the United States enacted for the preservation of public morals; and
"Whereas, the depraved, degraded, lascivious, degenerate and immoral character of the said Jack Johnson stands as a menace to good public morals, righteousness, decency and the virtue of the womanhood of this city and country; and
"Whereas, the said Jack Johnson has outraged and insulted the virtue and modesty of all decent women of this city and has made said virtue and modesty the subject of insulting banter and ribald jest by reason of his aforesaid boasts; and
"Whereas, we believe that the said Jack Johnson, because of the matters herein above recited, has disgraced the race of which he is a member, has disgraced the alleged calling of pugilism, has disgraced and brought into contempt the business in which he is engaged and has made law abiding saloon keepers suffer through his indiscretions and licentious doings;

Charges Disgrace of Race.
"Now, therefore, be it resolved by the members of the common council of the city of Chicago, voicing the righteous indignation and respect for the law, the law abiding and respect for the virtue and modesty of all decent women of Chicago who are deeply interested in the preservation and maintenance of a high standard of public morals and public decency and in the enforcement of all ordinances and all laws, both state and national for the attainment of these ends, that his honor, Carter H. Harrison, mayor of the city of Chicago, be and he is hereby respectfully urged and requested to use all the powers and broad discretion reposed in him by reason of his great office, to the end that the saloon license of the said John Arthur Johnson may be revoked and annulled, and that the said John Arthur Johnson may be prosecuted to the full extent of the law under all the said charges which have been made or may be made against him."

BULGARIAN PEASANTS MASSACRED BY TURKS

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY ARE FORCED TO LIE ON GROUND
AND THEN SHOT.

London, Oct. 23.—The first of the dreaded Turkish massacres by Turks is reported from Gireno, via Sofia, where 150 Bulgarian peasants were forced to lie on the ground and then shot. Out of a day's fighting that included the practical beginning of the siege on Adrianople by the Bulgars and Serbs, the bombardment of the entrance to the Gulf of Arta by Greek war vessels and sanguinary battles in every part of the war zones of Turkey, this massacre is looked upon as the development most likely to inflame the Balkan states to the point where they will not listen to the renewed efforts toward arbitration by the powers but fight to the finish, regardless of the outcome of the impending great battle at Adrianople.

From Sofia also comes the news that the Bulgarians, aided by a strong force of Servians and together composing an army of more than 300,000 men, have captured Kirk-Kilisseh, 32 miles from Adrianople, and are pushing onward, driving the Turkish outposts before them, in the hope of reducing the latter city in time to continue their march toward Constantinople next week. The advance guard of the invaders is reported to be 12 miles from the city. Practically every Bulgarian force now in the field has joined the main force for the attack. Six hundred field guns have been brought up for the battle, these to be pitted against the 300 guns within the Turkish forts. The Turkish force is estimated at 200,000.

A late dispatch from Sofia is to the effect that the Turks are abandoning Macedonian towns after killing the mayors, school masters and priests. According to this same dispatch Bulgarians have taken the towns of Moehla, Dvlin and Kerjara, making four companies of Turkish troops prisoners.

If business throughout the country is as active and prosperous as the industries we collect revenue from then everything is booming."

Residents in the vicinity complained that they feared the "wild man" would starve, as he never asked for anything to eat, and this led to his arrest. When anyone approached he would run and hide. Black says his father is a Knox county farmer. He says he left home two years ago.

IMPORTANCE OF FALL PLOWING

This is the season of the year when the farmers should begin to plan their winter plowing for upon it depends largely their success next year. All vegetable matter on the land not to be utilized for forage should be plowed under early, before frost, if possible, that it may have time to decay and become humus. By plowing the vegetable matter into the soil early in the season will tend to prevent soil acidity, which is often the result of its incomplete decay. This is a matter of supreme importance if the farmer is to maintain the soil's fertility and to keep it in a condition to resist drought.

Humus has a wonderful effect on the soil's power to produce. It is not in reality a fertilizer, but its effects on plant foods are of such a nature that it is regarded by many as possessing the power of fertilizers. Liebig, a half a century ago, proved that humus should not be regarded as a plant food, yet he emphasized its importance as an agency to keep the soil in a proper physical condition. And in this respect it is more potent than any chemical fertilizer that can be applied. One of its first good effects is that it possesses the power of absorbing a great deal of water, thus contributing to the maintenance of humidity in the soil. It possesses another useful power, that of fixing the ammonia in the soil so as to prevent it from being carried off by rains. It afterwards gives back this ammonia to vegetation. Its functions in this respect are analogous to those of clay. It also tends to supply vegetation with phosphorus, which is very necessary to plant development. Phosphates fill two distinct functions; they aid themselves in the nutrition of the plant and determine the beneficial action of the other mineral ingredients. Their function is, therefore, more important than that of the other mineral ingredients, since to their own peculiar action is added a secondary desired effect, that of determining the assimilation of all other mineral plant food.

The farmer who neglects to plow under in the fall the heavy coating of vegetation which covers his cultivated land makes a great mistake. He may not be able to realize it at once, neglect of this duty year after year will bring him to a full realization of his fatal error.

It has been written that the fertility in the soil should be likened to a bank account. Each crop grown extracts from the land a certain amount of reserve fund. If this continues without replenishing the total reserve will finally be drawn out and the soil is depleted of its essential plant foods. Each blade of grass takes from the soil its minimum of plant food. This plant food must be preserved in some way or the land will become impoverished.

The farmer can do nothing that will have a more potent influence in perpetuating his soil's fertility than plowing under the vegetable matter growing on the land before it is leached by winter rains and winter frosts.

Fall Reflections.
When the frost is on the window,
And the pipes are full of ice;
And the furnace heat to warm you,
Really does not half suffice;
When a chilly draft is creeping,
Like a snake across the floor,
And the man who comes to see you
Falls to shut the outer door;
When your coal supply has vanished,
And your hired girl has left,
And your clothes are thin and seedy,
And your pocketbook bare,
Do not let your fierce emotion
Make you its complaining fool,
But remember there is virtue
In the act of keeping cool.

J. G. Criswell, a painter living at 540 North Mulberry St., Hagerstown Md., states: "I had kidney trouble with a severe pain across my back, and could hardly get up after sitting down. I took Foley Kidney Pills and soon found the pain left my back, I could get up and down with ease, and the bladder action was more regular and normal." Try them. F. A. Morris, Canfield.—Adv.

COAL OUTPUT DOUBLES

An interesting fact not startling fact in connection with the production of coal in the United States, according to the United States Geological Survey, is that in each successive decade the output is practically doubled. If the production of bituminous coal alone were considered, the record for the last 50 years would show an increase somewhat in excess of this ratio. The increase in the production of anthracite has been much less rapid on account of the limited area of the fields, the conditions under which the industry is carried on, and the restriction of the prepared sizes to domestic consumption. It has been estimated that the output of anthracite will reach 100,000,000 long tons annually before it begins to decline. The maximum production up to the present time has been 30,714,388 long tons. An increase in the annual production of bituminous coal may be anticipated for some time to come.

The statistics of coal production in the past show that up to the close of 1885 the total output had amounted to 284,890,055 short tons. In the decade from 1886 to 1895, inclusive, the production amounted to 419,425,104 tons, making the total production up to the close of 1895, 704,315,159 tons. In the following decade, from 1896 to 1905, inclusive, the output amounted to 847,760,319 tons, somewhat more than double the total production during the preceding decade. At the close of 1885 the total production amounted to 1,552,075,478 tons, and the production during the 10 years ended in 1895 was 1,586,088,644 tons, the total production at the close of 1895 amounting to 3,138,174,119 short tons. In the decade ended December 31, 1905, the total production amounted to 2,832,402,746 short tons, and the grand total from the beginning of recorded coal mining in the United States amounted to 5,970,578,865 short tons. The average annual production from 1896 to 1905 was 283,240,275 short tons; the average production from 1906 to 1911, inclusive, was 461,499,280 short tons, showing an increase of 778,258,985 short tons, or 63 per cent.
